 2002 Center for Excellence in Undergraduate Education, Virginia Tech
 Received grant for the development of "Women and the Military" course. Proposed the new course to the University's Curriculum Committee, developed the reading materials and assignments, and contacted guest speakers from the Richmond and Washington, D.C. areas.

- 2001 Faculty Development Institute, Virginia Tech
Three-day workshop on advanced web-based teaching (June)
- 2001 The Gender of Technology: An Exhibit, Virginia Tech
Created a public exhibit with students on the gendered aspects of technology in society. At least 700 people saw the exhibit, and professors from a number of different departments designed assignments using the exhibit. Applied for grant from Center for Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching to fund part of the costs of this three-week-long exhibit. (I paid for the entire exhibit because it did not get funded.) Created a virtual tour of the exhibit, which can be seen at <http://www.ws.appstate.edu/gendertechex/exhibit.html>.
- 1998 Faculty Development Institute, Virginia Tech
Four-day workshop on multimedia projects on the Macintosh (e.g., digital video editing, creation of educational, interactive CD ROMs).
- 1998 Faculty Development Institute, Virginia Tech
Three-day workshop on distance-learning (instruction on software and equipment for online distance-learning courses, both synchronous and asynchronous).
- 1998 Faculty Development Workshop, Radford University
Five-day workshop on a software package, PODIUM, for the creation of CD ROMs and their use in teaching large classes.
- 1998 Service Learning, Virginia Tech
Received grant for the “Great Women in History Project,” and coordinated students and a community partner (who received the grant money) to bring reports about great women to the local elementary school classroom.
- 1997 Women’s Studies Program, Virginia Tech
Put Introductory Women’s Studies course material and Program information online, with a “Cybercore” Grant from Virginia Tech. The results of this effort can be seen at <http://www.idst.vt.edu/ws/> (Click on “Modules”). Notably this effort resulted in Virginia Tech’s WS Program becoming a “megasite” of online resources in the field.
- 1997 Faculty Development Institute, Virginia Tech
Three-day workshop on the software package Power Point, which also covered slide and photo scanning, manipulation of images in Adobe Photoshop, and instructional applications
- 1993-95 Office of Instructional Development, University of California
Teaching Consultant. Responsibilities include watching videotapes of teaching assistants from all disciplines and providing them with constructive criticism and suggestions for increased teaching effectiveness. Supervisor: Shirley Ronkowski.
- 1994 “Successful Communication With Your Instructors”
First published in KIOSK: 1994-95 UCSB Student Handbook. University of California, Santa Barbara. Appears in Volume IX-present volume. An updated version is also currently used at Virginia Tech.
